This beautifully situated pie-shaped homesite deserved a special treatment given its endless views over the Treasure Valley (Boise, ID). And because of the location's rarity, we hired world-renowned architect Mike Woodley, AIA, to design an awe-inspiring home.

The home's incredible curb appeal showcases a transitional cottage elevation with a limited garage-face, but actually includes a 4-bay tandem. As you walk into the home you're immediately faced with walls of windows and breathtaking 50+ mile views. The intentionally designed open-concept layout allows the great room, dining, and chef's kitchen to flow seamlessly, and works perfectly for large gatherings.

One of the home's grandest features is the two-level primary suite which includes everything a luxury buyer is looking for: an exquisite primary bath, oversized walk-in closet, dedicated laundry, and a private staircase leading to a cozy retreat area and fitness room. The open to below effect in the primary suite is a truly stunning element that makes this home unique.
